In October 2015, ADD International, in partnership with the National Youth Organization for Development (NAYODE) and the National Union of Disabled Persons in Uganda (NUDIPU), received a grant from the Delegation of the European Union to implement the “Peace Building and Inclusion for All” action project in Kasese and Kabarole districts. The overall objective of the project is to promote peaceful co-operation on ethnic minorities and marginalised groups in the Rwenzori sub-region using disability inclusion as a model for building respect for human rights, democracy and inclusive development. And indeed the action is generating crucial insights in creating peace in the region.

The area surrounding the Rwenzori Mountains has been historically marred by conflict among Basongora, Banyankole, Banyarwanda, Bagisu, Batooro and Banyoro ethnic groups, partly fuelled by land, tribal and political differences.

Having the above in mind, the action deliberately targets ethnic minority communities living in Kasese District, the three-year action targets ethnic minority groups in Nyamwamba Division, Hima, Rwimi and Kibiito that are found in Kasese District. The action is contributing to a situation where no social group is excluded on account of ethnic background, disability, gender or any other least five different kinds of exclusion simultaneously on the basis of disability, ethnicity, gender, youth and geography.

The partnership of ADD International, NAYODE, and NUDIPU, with five other partners, is working towards towards restorative justice and inclusion of all in the sub-region.

Operating is eleven sub-counties of Kisinga, Nyakatonzi, Katwe, Bulembia, Banutukoen, Bweyogerere, Bulembia, Bukore, Bukaleme, Masindi, Kyamba, Kyamukya, Kanyalengo, Kasese, Bulembia Division, Hima, Rwimi and Kibiito that are found in Kasese District. The three-year action targets ethnic minority communities, including youth, children, people with disabilities and women.

The action is contributing to a situation where no social group is excluded on account of ethnic background, disability, gender or any other form of discrimination because building an inclusive society which respects human rights will resolve key causes of conflict in Rwenzori sub-region.

A study on multiple forms of discrimination

To crown the first year of the action, the action partners implemented a study on multiple forms of discrimination experienced by PWDs from ethnic minority communities living in the Rwenzori sub-region within the sub-region. It is expected that understanding the intersectionality of discrimination experienced by PWDs and ethnic minorities in the Rwenzori sub-region will not only inform action plans on disability, ethnicity and conflict in the sub-region but also promote an integrated approach to address intersectional discrimination.

A STUDIO ON MULTIPLE FORMS OF DISCRIMINATION

To crown the first year of the action, the action partners implemented a study on multiple forms of discrimination experienced by PWDs from ethnic minority communities living in the Rwenzori sub-region within the sub-region. It is expected that understanding the intersectionality of discrimination experienced by PWDs and ethnic minorities in the Rwenzori sub-region will not only inform action plans on disability, ethnicity and conflict in the sub-region but also promote an integrated approach to address intersectional discrimination.

A STUDIO ON MULTIPLE FORMS OF DISCRIMINATION

To crown the first year of the action, the action partners implemented a study on multiple forms of discrimination experienced by PWDs from ethnic minority communities living in the Rwenzori sub-region within the sub-region. It is expected that understanding the intersectionality of discrimination experienced by PWDs and ethnic minorities in the Rwenzori sub-region will not only inform action plans on disability, ethnicity and conflict in the sub-region but also promote an integrated approach to address intersectional discrimination.

A STUDIO ON MULTIPLE FORMS OF DISCRIMINATION

To crown the first year of the action, the action partners implemented a study on multiple forms of discrimination experienced by PWDs from ethnic minority communities living in the Rwenzori sub-region within the sub-region. It is expected that understanding the intersectionality of discrimination experienced by PWDs and ethnic minorities in the Rwenzori sub-region will not only inform action plans on disability, ethnicity and conflict in the sub-region but also promote an integrated approach to address intersectional discrimination.

A STUDIO ON MULTIPLE FORMS OF DISCRIMINATION

To crown the first year of the action, the action partners implemented a study on multiple forms of discrimination experienced by PWDs from ethnic minority communities living in the Rwenzori sub-region within the sub-region. It is expected that understanding the intersectionality of discrimination experienced by PWDs and ethnic minorities in the Rwenzori sub-region will not only inform action plans on disability, ethnicity and conflict in the sub-region but also promote an integrated approach to address intersectional discrimination.

A STUDIO ON MULTIPLE FORMS OF DISCRIMINATION

To crown the first year of the action, the action partners implemented a study on multiple forms of discrimination experienced by PWDs from ethnic minority communities living in the Rwenzori sub-region within the sub-region. It is expected that understanding the intersectionality of discrimination experienced by PWDs and ethnic minorities in the Rwenzori sub-region will not only inform action plans on disability, ethnicity and conflict in the sub-region but also promote an integrated approach to address intersectional discrimination.

A STUDIO ON MULTIPLE FORMS OF DISCRIMINATION

To crown the first year of the action, the action partners implemented a study on multiple forms of discrimination experienced by PWDs from ethnic minority communities living in the Rwenzori sub-region within the sub-region. It is expected that understanding the intersectionality of discrimination experienced by PWDs and ethnic minorities in the Rwenzori sub-region will not only inform action plans on disability, ethnicity and conflict in the sub-region but also promote an integrated approach to address intersectional discrimination.

A STUDIO ON MULTIPLE FORMS OF DISCRIMINATION

To crown the first year of the action, the action partners implemented a study on multiple forms of discrimination experienced by PWDs from ethnic minority communities living in the Rwenzori sub-region within the sub-region. It is expected that understanding the intersectionality of discrimination experienced by PWDs and ethnic minorities in the Rwenzori sub-region will not only inform action plans on disability, ethnicity and conflict in the sub-region but also promote an integrated approach to address intersectional discrimination.

A STUDIO ON MULTIPLE FORMS OF DISCRIMINATION

To crown the first year of the action, the action partners implemented a study on multiple forms of discrimination experienced by PWDs from ethnic minority communities living in the Rwenzori sub-region within the sub-region. It is expected that understanding the intersectionality of discrimination experienced by PWDs and ethnic minorities in the Rwenzori sub-region will not only inform action plans on disability, ethnicity and conflict in the sub-region but also promote an integrated approach to address intersectional discrimination.

A STUDIO ON MULTIPLE FORMS OF DISCRIMINATION

To crown the first year of the action, the action partners implemented a study on multiple forms of discrimination experienced by PWDs from ethnic minority communities living in the Rwenzori sub-region within the sub-region. It is expected that understanding the intersectionality of discrimination experienced by PWDs and ethnic minorities in the Rwenzori sub-region will not only inform action plans on disability, ethnicity and conflict in the sub-region but also promote an integrated approach to address intersectional discrimination.

A STUDIO ON MULTIPLE FORMS OF DISCRIMINATION

To crown the first year of the action, the action partners implemented a study on multiple forms of discrimination experienced by PWDs from ethnic minority communities living in the Rwenzori sub-region within the sub-region. It is expected that understanding the intersectionality of discrimination experienced by PWDs and ethnic minorities in the Rwenzori sub-region will not only inform action plans on disability, ethnicity and conflict in the sub-region but also promote an integrated approach to address intersectional discrimination.

A STUDIO ON MULTIPLE FORMS OF DISCRIMINATION

To crown the first year of the action, the action partners implemented a study on multiple forms of discrimination experienced by PWDs from ethnic minority communities living in the Rwenzori sub-region within the sub-region. It is expected that understanding the intersectionality of discrimination experienced by PWDs and ethnic minorities in the Rwenzori sub-region will not only inform action plans on disability, ethnicity and conflict in the sub-region but also promote an integrated approach to address intersectional discrimination.

A STUDIO ON MULTIPLE FORMS OF DISCRIMINATION

To crown the first year of the action, the action partners implemented a study on multiple forms of discrimination experienced by PWDs from ethnic minority communities living in the Rwenzori sub-region within the sub-region. It is expected that understanding the intersectionality of discrimination experienced by PWDs and ethnic minorities in the Rwenzori sub-region will not only inform action plans on disability, ethnicity and conflict in the sub-region but also promote an integrated approach to address intersectional discrimination.

A STUDIO ON MULTIPLE FORMS OF DISCRIMINATION

To crown the first year of the action, the action partners implemented a study on multiple forms of discrimination experienced by PWDs from ethnic minority communities living in the Rwenzori sub-region within the sub-region. It is expected that understanding the intersectionality of discrimination experienced by PWDs and ethnic minorities in the Rwenzori sub-region will not only inform action plans on disability, ethnicity and conflict in the sub-region but also promote an integrated approach to address intersectional discrimination.

A STUDIO ON MULTIPLE FORMS OF DISCRIMINATION

To crown the first year of the action, the action partners implemented a study on multiple forms of discrimination experienced by PWDs from ethnic minority communities living in the Rwenzori sub-region within the sub-region. It is expected that understanding the intersectionality of discrimination experienced by PWDs and ethnic minorities in the Rwenzori sub-region will not only inform action plans on disability, ethnicity and conflict in the sub-region but also promote an integrated approach to address intersectional discrimination.

A STUDIO ON MULTIPLE FORMS OF DISCRIMINATION

To crown the first year of the action, the action partners implemented a study on multiple forms of discrimination experienced by PWDs from ethnic minority communities living in the Rwenzori sub-region within the sub-region. It is expected that understanding the intersectionality of discrimination experienced by PWDs and ethnic minorities in the Rwenzori sub-region will not only inform action plans on disability, ethnicity and conflict in the sub-region but also promote an integrated approach to address intersectional discrimination.

A STUDIO ON MULTIPLE FORMS OF DISCRIMINATION

To crown the first year of the action, the action partners implemented a study on multiple forms of discrimination experienced by PWDs from ethnic minority communities living in the Rwenzori sub-region within the sub-region. It is expected that understanding the intersectionality of discrimination experienced by PWDs and ethnic minorities in the Rwenzori sub-region will not only inform action plans on disability, ethnicity and conflict in the sub-region but also promote an integrated approach to address intersectional discrimination.

A STUDIO ON MULTIPLE FORMS OF DISCRIMINATION

To crown the first year of the action, the action partners implemented a study on multiple forms of discrimination experienced by PWDs from ethnic minority communities living in the Rwenzori sub-region within the sub-region. It is expected that understanding the intersectionality of discrimination experienced by PWDs and ethnic minorities in the Rwenzori sub-region will not only inform action plans on disability, ethnicity and conflict in the sub-region but also promote an integrated approach to address intersectional discrimination.